<sup>2</sup> Past performance is not a reliable indicator of future performance. The managed portfolio performance represents total return for the periods. Returns have been calculated using the time-weighted method, they assume distributions are reinvested and are after investment management fees and indirect costs. Total and growth returns include accrued distributions, while income return includes paid distributions only. Returns do not take into account tax payable. Individual client returns may vary based on the contributions, withdrawals, and timing differences within the managed portfolio

Quarterly manager commentary

Market Update

Global markets grinded higher over the quarter, aided by ultra-accommodative monetary policy, rising vaccination rates, broad-based easing of restrictions across many economies, and a stellar US earnings season. However, weighing on investor sentiment was renewed inflation fears and the potential for earlier than expected interest rate hikes. A late quarter sell-off ensued, which saw September generate the weakest monthly return for global markets since March 2020. This culminated into disappointing returns for the more interest rate sensitive sectors (technology), and strong returns for sectors positively exposed to inflation (energy).

The Australian market continued its run of positive performance over the quarter, managing to shrug off the economic impact of continued lockdowns across the country. To the dismay of many economists, the Australian unemployment rate plummeted to a 13-year low of 4.5%. Importantly, this reflected a fall in the participation rate as an increasing cohort of workers left the workforce. Nonetheless, investors remained upbeat as equities remain supported with interest rates anchored near zero and global economic growth accelerating above trend. Domestically, concerns around rising interest rates impacting the technology sector were balanced by Square's $39b acquisition of Afterpay, representing the largest acquisition in Australian history. Otherwise, the materials sector suffered the worst performance as the price of iron ore halved, following a Chinese government crackdown on steel manufacturing pollution.

Overall, a healthy mix of volatility across equities was seen over the quarter, as investors digested a combination of positive and negative developments. Uncertainty remains as to what impact embattled property developer, Evergrande, will have on the Chinese economy and the spill over effects to the domestic mining industry if Chinese growth decelerates. Offsetting these concerns, however, has been the robustness of the global economic recovery, underpinned by strong fiscal and monetary policy support.

Portfolio Update

We remain comfortable with the current structure of this portfolio. Consequently, no changes have been made this quarter.

The best performing funds over the quarter were Bennelong Australian Equities Fund, Solaris Australian Equity Long Short Fund, and iShares Australian Listed Property Index Fund. Bennelong continued to outperform its peers, holding active weights in consumer discretionary and health care stocks. Positive contributions to Solaris' performance include overweight holdings in Macquarie Group and South32 Limited and a short position in Fortescue Metals. iShares' outperformance was supported by the domestic economy's strong recovery as it continued its re-opening and expansion.

The worst performing funds were Western Asset Australian Bond Fund, Macquarie Income Opportunities Fund, and Magellan Global Fund (Open Class). Western's performance weakened due to yield curve positioning, while Macquarie's returns lagged its equity counterparts as investors rotated to riskier assets. Despite Netflix and Alphabet contributing to positive performance, Magellan fell short due to holdings in Alibaba and Tencent amid concerns around impending and potential future regulatory changes in China.
